Birds-eye view on new Innisfail Estate Display Village

As the Melbourne Spring Racing Carnival fires up, so too will the activity at Peet Limited's Innisfail Estate as it celebrates the opening of its new display village on Saturday 25 October.

Homebuyers, residents and the local community are all invited to enjoy an afternoon of free family fun, which includes a sausage sizzle, jumping castle, pony rides, face painting and merry-go-round rides.

From 11.30am to 4pm, visitors can also race in for free hot air balloon rides. The balloon rides will run weather dependent, and there are limited places, so visitors are encouraged to come early and to register from 11.30am.

Adults can also join the excitement by entering a competition to win tickets to the Melbourne Cup and viewing the new 14 homes on display at the estate.

Located on Sneydes Road, the new display village includes the latest in design by five of Melbourne's leading builders – Simonds, Porter Davis, Clarendon, Dennis Family Homes and Hermitage Homes.

Peet Limited Managing Director Brendan Gore said modern and energy efficient display homes were one reason Innisfail Estate continued to attract home buyers.

"Close to three quarters of land in this master-planned community has already sold and the last land release, Stage 18, was very popular," Mr Gore said.

"The accredited 5-star energy efficient home designs provide home buyers and builders with the option to develop houses that provide long-term financial benefits of reduced energy consumption."

Dennis Family Homes' Area Manager Neil Hodson said good design and value for money could be found at its two new display homes at Innisfail Estate.

"The stylish Waterford 240 Resort and the popular Brookdale 240 Classic both showcase the latest in clever contemporary living for couples or young families," said Mr Hodson.

Porter Davis Director Anthony Roberts said the opening of its three stunning lifestyle range homes merged both life and style with a truly functional and fresh result.

"The Francis, the Heywood and the Marina all demonstrate stylish, practical and inspiring ideas with a particular focus on home entertaining and integrated alfresco areas," said Mr Roberts.
